

Albert District News

A number of the Albert young people held an enjoyable picnic at Clear Lake on June 29 as a farewell gathering for Edgar Jones and Harley Barnes, who have been called up for military service and will leave home shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. Thornhill of Edmonton spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. Griffiths, leaving their two small daughters for a longer visit.

Mr. Good visited the school last Wednesday, but owing to monies only about half the scholars were present.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Friends to the number of twenty five gathered at the W.C.T.U. meeting Thursday afternoon, being the occasion of the deferred birthday program arranged for the 11th of June, postponed in loyal deference to the big sports day for raising war funds.

The chief features of the program as carried out were the reading of local prize winning essays on scientific temperance subjects. Curtis Sastro and Maribel Wilbraham were awarded respectively first and second prizes in grade 10, while Ariene Steffensen and Agnes Baergen tied in grade 9, Lois Longmire has the distinction of having written an essay on the same subject that during the past year has been awarded successively a local, district, provincial and finally a national prize. Mrs. Albert Knutson added much to the zest of the afternoon with guitar solos. Serving of afternoon tea and a social period closed the program with a collection for the funds of the organization.

Wedding Bells

TORY-BAGNALL NUPTIALS
Calgary, June 27—Dr. A. C. Archibald of First Baptist church here, officiated at the wedding Saturday of Miss Marjorie Lowe Bagnall, daughter of Dr. L. A. Bagnall of Calgary and the late Rev. H. S. Bagnall, and Mr. Kenneth Simpson Tory son of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Tory, pioneers of the Wainwright district.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Alberta and school of education, and has taught at Llan-ar-ydd school for girls, in Edmonton, as well as at Harkirk. For the past year she has been on the staff of the Wainwright high school.

The bridegroom recently was a candidate in the provincial general election and is well known throughout Canada. A short time ago he travelled to New Zealand and Australia where he spent a year studying political economy. He has gained much prominence in both Canada and Australia as an organizer of an all-Canadian hockey team.

The marriage ceremony was performed in the bride's home in Calgary.

Given away by her mother, the bride looked lovely in a turquoise printed sheer afternoon frock, with a corsage of gardenias pinned at her shoulder.

Dr. Bagnall was dressed in rose sheer with corsage to tone.

Miss Irene James of High River, as bridesmaid, wore a teal blue dress and corsage of tallman roses.

SCHONERT-McGILLIS

A quiet wedding took place on Monday, June 28, at 7 p.m. in Rundle

Memorial church, Banff, when Dorothy Margaret, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. McGillis, of Sidsbald, became the bride of Mr. Ralph C. Schonert, of Calgary, youngest son of Mrs. H. I. Schonert and the late Mr. Schonert. Rev. J. R. Geeson of Okotoks, officiated at the ceremony, which was attended by immediate relatives and close friends.

Mrs. Len Baroch, of Didsbury, attended the bride and the bridegroom was attended by his brother, Mr. J. Schonert, of Banff.

The bride was lovely in a redingote ensemble of cornflower blue, with a matching hat and accessories. She carried a bouquet of American beauty roses and forget-me-nots.

The reception was held at the Mount Royal hotel, when the bride's table was attractively decorated with the wedding cake and summer flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Schonert are spending their honeymoon in Banff, and will take up residence in the Belvoir apartments in Calgary—Calgary Herald.

The groom in this happy event is a former Irma boy. Friends wish this young couple many happy years of wedded life together.

LADLER-ELLWOOD

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the United church manse, Irma, on Monday, June 30th, when Mr. Peter Ladler of Kinslea and Miss Edith Ellwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Ellwood of the Albert district, were married. Rev. E. Longmire officiated.

The bridal couple were attended by Mr. Claude and Miss Myrtle Ramsey.

SHOWER FOR BRIDE

A delightful miscellaneous shower was an event of interest to nearly fifty friends of Miss Rena Fenton, bride-elect of the near future. Rose and white candies, with fern, decorated the home of Rev. and Mrs. Longmire where the guests amused themselves with group songs until the arrival of the guest of honor. Humorously referring to the little rose used to Laura Fenton's presence at the party, Mrs. Longmire asked the bride-to-be to accept the gifts and good wishes of her assembled friends. Presented by several younger guests, these gifts proved to be many; various beautiful and practical. In a few well chosen words, Miss Fenton thanked her friends for their kindness and generosity, and extended a sincere invitation to all present to visit her in her new home, should the opportunity present itself. A delicious lunch brought a very enjoyable evening to a close. Hostesses of the evening were Mrs. Longmire, Mrs. Fletcher, Mrs. Frielton and Mrs. Robt. Smith. Out of corn guests included Mrs. B. Hadlow, Mrs. P. J. Hardy and Miss Mildred Hill, all of Edmonton.

A Valuable Contribution

Without Farmer No Country In World Would Be Prosperous

I am a farmer and the provider for all mankind. Upon me every human being constantly depends. A world is built upon by toll, my products and my honesty. Because of my industry Canada, my country, is one of the leading countries of the world and one with the brightest outlook for the future. Her prosperity is maintained by me. My reaper brings food for to-day; my plow holds promise for to-morrow. In war I am absolute; in peace I am indispensable—my country's surest defence and constant reliance.

I am the very soul of Canada the hope of a race, the balance wheel of civilization. When I prosper men are happy; when I fail, all the world suffers.

Dangerous Souvenirs

In London, the Minister of Home Security has disclosed that unexploded missiles, mostly collected by souvenir hunters, have killed 12 persons and injured six.

At key points all over Britain ambulance and casualty evacuation trains stand ready for constant use. End for end, the trains would extend for seven miles.

The Holy City

Jerusalem Is Now A Teeming Metropolis

Refugees streaming into Jerusalem have made the ancient Holy City a teeming metropolis, where all Allied uniforms can be seen, and there is a babel of tongues, races and colors.

Not since the days of King Solomon has the city been such an important Middle Eastern centre. Successive German penetrations in the Mediterranean have brought royalty, cabinet ministers, diplomats, professors and students to Jerusalem.

For the first time since the crusades, Christians of all sects are united under one flag and in a common cause. But unlike the crusades of 800 years ago, the brotherhood of arms now includes Moslems, Jews and Hindus.

Religious-minded persons see in this the beginning of the fulfilment of Isaiah's ancient prophecy in which the Lord's house was set on the mountain tops and all nations flowed to it.

They believe there also will be fulfilment of that part of the prophecy, which says: "They will beat swords to plowshares, spears to pruning hooks, nation shall not lift sword against nation, and they will not learn war any more."

The mood of Jerusalem is evidenced by the fact there is a shortage of Bibles in the European languages.

The Holy Sepulchre is the focal point of daily life, where appointments are made and kept where carefully-groomed society women mix with ebony Senegalese, where dramatic meetings take place between brothers and sisters who have not suspected one another's presence in Palestine.

Most refugees are energetically engaged in sight-seeing. One tourist manager, misquoting Moliere, classified them as "tourists despite themselves."

Jerusalem is so overcrowded that monasteries, convents, churches, synagogues and even the Hebrew university on Mount Scopus are converting all spaces available into sleeping quarters for refugees regardless of their faith.

During the day the population appears to subsist chiefly on ice cream, watermelon, cool native tamarine drinks or bilious-looking lemonade purchased from street-hawkers shouting their wares in all languages.

The evening is spent meandering through the old city, taking in its rare beauty as the muezzins' voices mingle with church bells, sheep bells and the evening prayers in synagogues.

Comment Made About Hitler By Late Ex-Kaiser

The British Broadcasting Corporation told this story about a comment made by the late ex-Kaiser Wilhelm of Hitler:

Last year, at the time of the fall of France, the ex-kaiser was told Hitler had planned the whole operation.

The Kaiser squared his shoulders and said: "It only goes to show how well we trained our corporals in the last war."

Quite True

The teacher was trying to impress on the children how important had been the discovery of the law of gravitation. "Sir Isaac Newton was sitting on the ground, looking at the tree. An apple fell on his head, and from that he discovered gravitation. Just think, children," she added, "isn't that wonderful?"

The inevitable small boy replied: "Yes'm, an' if he had been sittin' in school lookin' at his books, he wouldn't never have discovered nothin'!"

VICTORY BOND

This woman has complete faith in Canada... in the rightness of our cause... and the greatness of our future, once Victory is won. And she wanted so much to "do her bit" in the Victory Loan. But she didn't have $50!

Then a Loan Adviser explained how she could buy a Bond by instalments. Today she is the proud and happy applicant for a $50-Victory Bond!

Here is how she will pay for it: $5.00 on application; $7.50 on July 15th; $7.50 on August 15th; $10.00 on September 15th; $10.00 on October 15th; and $10.36 on November 15th.

Story About Two Dogs Seems To Require Some Telling

"I've got a couple of dogs called Once and Twice," said the dog man. When people say to them, "Come here, doggie!" I say, "You've got to call him Once and the other one Twice."

Of course, I call them both once even if I've called one Twice. Before I called them Once and Twice I called them To and Fro, but I didn't like those names, so I called them what they are now.

You see, I named both of them twice, even if I named only one of them Once.

I don't have to call Twice twice—

and—

Pshaw! Work it out for yourself!

SELECTED RECIPES

RHUBARB CONSERVE

4 lb rhubarb
5 lb sugar
1 lb seeded raisins
2 oranges
1 lemon

Wash and peel stalks of rhubarb and cut in 1-inch pieces. Put in kettle, sprinkle with sugar, add raisins, juice of oranges and lemon, and grated rind of oranges and lemon. Mix, cover and let stand ½ hour. Then bring to boiling point and let simmer 45 minutes stirring almost constantly. Fill jelly glasses with mixture, cool and seal.

APPLE STRUDEL

Line a buttered pudding dish with corn flakes. Cover with a layer of very thinly sliced cooking apples, sprinkle with light brown sugar, a little cinnamon and dot with pieces of butter. Fill to top with alternate layers, finishing with a layer of corn flakes. Cover dish closely. Bake in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) until apples are soft. Serve with cream.

A Very Old Custom

In 1660 the Lord Chief Justice of England met his death by catching goat fever from a prisoner he tried. This mishap resulted in the custom, still maintained, of laying bunches of aromatic herbs before the judges in Old Bailey trials to give them protection.

Seventh largest of the rivers of the world is the Lena, with a length of 2,860 miles.

The pyramids are built of fossilized sandstone formed at the bottom of the sea.

Coat Buttons Have Meaning

Chinese commonly wear five buttons on their coat to remind them of the five principal virtues recommended by Confucius—humanity, justice, order, prudence and rectitude.

The reason the average man can't tell a woman anything is because she would rather talk than listen.

Blacksmiths are high caste in the Island of Bali. Their prestige derives from the fact that they make the kris, a dagger, which is semi-sacred.

The modern girl is a queer combination. She will not wear a stocking with a hole in it or a pair of shoes unless there's a hole in the toe.

CHAPTER XI

Devona would have fled immediately to the safety of her own room. But as Vars closed the door behind her again, Dale caught her hand.

"It may be an uncivilized hour to be up hunting burglars, but it's a swell hour for a ride out on the desert to watch a sunrise," he whispered. "Come?"

Perfectly aware that Vars probably stood just inside that closed door waiting to be obeyed, Devona hesitated.

"Please. You've no idea how lovely it is." The blue eyes pleaded. And only when she nodded her acceptance did he release her, stand grinning as she raced down the hall, closed her own door with a smart little click.

Half an hour later, Dale was waiting for her at the stables. The eastern sky was just beginning to blush a lovely pink and except for the occasional clomp of a horse's hoof in the stalls, the world seemed wrapped in a blanket of deep silence.

Devona felt almost as if she should whisper her greeting in the eerie half-light of morning.

"Did I keep you waiting?" Dale swung down off the corral fence where he'd been perched, shook his head. "Not long. And—" his grin teased again—"it was worth it."

"Maybe we'd better leave a note," she suggested.

"I did." Dale held out his hand. "Up you go."

Dawn broke just as they rode out of the canyon, came onto a level mesa. The unbelievably blue sky broke into a brilliant prism spreading fingers of green and soft purple and orange across the sky like giant searchlights.

For a moment they just watched the lovely miracle, feasting their eyes, breathing deep of the crisp, dry air. Even their sleek, well-groomed mounts stood quietly for a moment. And Devona had the strange sensation of their being alone in some infinite, remote world—just she and Dale together. If only it could always be like this.

Then the rim of the sun pushed over the horizon and it was morning.

"Glorious, wasn't it?" she murmured.

Dale didn't answer and when she looked to see why, she found his eyes on her, grave, almost tender. And for a fleeting second she felt that he, too, must have shared her emotion of the moment before. Because something had drawn them closer. She felt it even as her nervous mount jerked her away from him, down the trail at a smart gallop.

When Dale caught up with her, the gravity was gone, replaced by that precious, crinkly-eyed smile she'd come to adore.

"You ride like a born circus performer," he said as they cantered along. "Done lots of it?"

She nodded. "Yes. Some for pleasure. A lot for necessity. You see, many of the camps had had to live in mere miles from transportation. It was go with him by horse or mule back, or stay behind in some God-forsaken little village by myself. So, of course, I usually went along."

"Pretty dangerous, wasn't it?"

"Sometimes. But it was fun, too. And, of course, Dad never let me go if the danger was too great."

"I think I'd have liked that Dad of yours," Dale said suddenly.

She smiled, nodded. "I know you would." And Dad, she added silently, shouldered young man, too.

Then, as the trail narrowed, curved up onto a rocky plateau, Devona rode ahead. Responding to the free rein, her horse plunged faster. Even as the dry air whipped her face, Devona felt easily into the rhythm of the horse's step, gloried in this head-long rush across the open desert.

Suddenly, as she took a little gully at a flying gallop, the fleet-footed mare shied violently, reared, snorting, until she almost unseated her rider. In the same instant, Devona saw why. A huge snake—slipping across the hot, sandy trail, coiling rapidly now, in angry, hissing menace to both horse and rider. The deadly rattlesnake!

Cold with horror, Devona felt the frightened mare jerk the reins out of her hands, take the bit in her teeth as she whirled. Devona clung to the saddle as the horse dashed headlong down a steep canyon, took a dry creek bed in a single, terrifying leap, scrambled up to the hard flat mesa beyond.

Behind her, she heard the pounding hooves of Dale's horse in pursuit. Her own horse, terrified and challenged now by the steady thunder of those hoof-beats behind, raced on faster. Surely she'd exhaust herself soon. Devona prayed and clung frantically to the saddle horn.

The wind whipped tears into her eyes blindingly, sent strands of the mares flying mane to smack smartly against her cheeks. Her aching hands threatened to loose, their hold any moment.

Then, horrified, she saw that only a few hundred yards ahead, the mesa dropped off again, precipitately! Probably, her imagination pictured horribly, into a hot, rocky canyon where at this break-neck speed, even a sure-footed thoroughbred like this on would crash to certain death.

As in some horrible nightmare, she watched the mesa's rim draw closer—closer! Twice she tried to reach the reins flying wildly under the mare's foam-flecked head. And twice nearly slipped from the saddle.

"Don't try it!" Faintly from behind, she heard Dale's shouted command. "Just hang on."

For seconds that might better have been measured by eternities, they pounded on, pursued and pursued. Until the rim of the canyon seemed only another step, a chasm, yawning right at her feet.

Devona shut her eyes, steeled herself for the shattering fall, felt her horse rear, plunge to one side, gather speed as if for a mighty leap. Faint her breath forced back into her throat by the force of the wind, she clung more through reflex action than conscious direction of her aching muscles.

Then suddenly, the horse was slowing its terrific speed. Rocking in the big Western saddle, she felt herself slipping dangerously, tried to regain her balance. But this time, too-tense muscles refused to obey. Another moment and she'd have fallen under those sharp, murderous hooves. The same moment that she felt a strong arm around her, a quick sharp pain in her side as she was jerked bodily out of the saddle.

She looked up into Dale's white face, tried to speak. Instead, she slipped off into a black cloud of unconsciousness.

When she opened her eyes again she saw that the tenderness in his voice was matched by that in his eyes. She stared into their blue depths, hypnotized by the emotion she saw unmaking there, not daring to breathe, to break the spell of—

"I love you, Devona. Love you. Love you, darling!"—he was saying now, holding her so close she felt his heart beating a tom-tom against her own breast. "I don't want to lose you—ever."

For an instant, their eyes met, clung hungrily. Then Devona heard her own voice answering. "And I love you, too, Dale."

With that, he swept her close, his lips crushing hers in a kiss that grew quickly from a tender caress to stormy passionate embrace. Her arms, as if of their own accord, slipped around his neck with answering pressure.

"That's pretty wonderful," Dale murmured a moment later, his voice tones deeper with this new emotion. "I'd never dreamed it could be—like this."

Devona ran the tip of her finger, slowly, caressingly, down the bridge of his fine, straight nose. "I did. I've been dreaming about it always—ever since I saw you. I knew it had to be—love."

He kissed her again. "You sweetheart. I guess women do know more about love. I'd begun to think there was no such thing, really."

"And—now?"

"Now I know it's"—he grinned, hugged her close. "It's what makes the world go round! I've been wondering why the old place seemed different lately. Now, I know it's because of a little black-haired girl I found sitting on a trunk down at the San Pedro wharf. Funny that one small package like this could make so much difference."

Smiling, Devona teased him. "And wasn't it only last night you said love only happened in story-books?"

"Did I? He kissed the tip of her nose. "What a sap. Or else this is just a fairy tale and pretty soon somebody will come along and break the spell."

Quickly, Devona shook her head. "Oh, no."

With sudden seriousness he searched her face almost anxiously. "Darling, don't let anything, any one ever break this spell, will you?"

"Of course not, darling."

"You do love me. You're sure?"

"Terribly, wonderfully sure, Dale."

"And nothing will ever change your mind?"

She smiled, drew his face down close to hers. "Of course not, darling."

And sealed that with her kiss.

But even as she tried to reassure his strange anxiety, a premonition stalked into her own mind, trailing tatters of old fears. Something so perfect as this—so precious, so flawless. They had to keep it lovely as it was this moment between them forever. Nothing, nothing must ever break the spell of their happiness. If only she could be sure.

Model Of House-Fly

Shows Exactly What This Menace To Man Looks Like

What does a house-fly look like, say, to a germ? Mr. T. B. Kurlala of the Royal Ontario Museum has worked this out. With painstaking dexterity he has produced a model of the house-fly on a scale 187,200 times the original volume. The model shows the spines and hairs which cover the body like porcupine quills, the large globular eyes made up of thousands of small eyes; and the sucking mouth which is extended to show its parts. Another similar model displays the fly's brain, heart and stomach. One small part of a fly's foot has been enlarged 200,700,000,000 times to show small bacteria clinging to the claws. A culture dish shows the growth of bacteria introduced by the house-fly and a dead mouse is displayed as the nursery of the young flies or maggots. To properly impress the Museum visitor with the unpleasant contact of flies and man a giant house-fly is seen secreting saliva and faces upon the icing of a piece of cake. Altogether, the common fly is exposed as an unwholesome creature to have about the house.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Wall Was Repaired

Bismarck's Fate Closed Breach Made When The Hood Went Down

We believe most American felt their country and their continent less safe when the great British battle cruiser, the Hood went down. They felt as if a breach had been made in a protective wall.

We believe the same majority of Americans felt vastly more safe when the enormous Bismarck went down under British gun and torpedo-fire. They felt as if the wall had been repaired.

We give our sympathy to those isolationists of the Lindbergh stripe who are contented to believe that it makes no difference whether the Hood went down or whether the Bismarck followed.

These men are divorced from our world, the world of reality. The rest of us will lift our hats to our English protectors for a dazzling sea epic, a thrilling demonstration, of pluck and skill in the deepest moment of adversity.—New York Post.

A Remarkable Story

A circular noscope from a German bomb came through the window of a London apartment, spinning so fast that it circled the four walls of the room before it stopped. In one corner it crossed the glass doors of a built-in china closet without breaking them.

The final test of eating technique is a chicken wing. If you can get any meat off without picking it up, you're an expert.

There is about a pound of salt in every gallon of sea water.

Two Kinds Of Fees

And Specialist Gave Millionaire His Choice Of Payment

One of New York's foremost physicians reveals the story of the call he received, some years ago, to go to Durham, N.C., and treat Doris Duke's father. He spent a day and a half at the Duke estate, and then prescribed a change of diet. At the end of the month, he submitted his bill—$14,000. Duke became enraged at this, called his own doctor, and said: "That New York specialist wants me to pay him $14,000 just for changing my bread to toast. It's outrageous. Speak to him." The doctor phoned the eminent specialist, at the dispensary where he was treating a group of patients without fee. "I have two kinds of fees," the specialist explained. "The first is $14,000; the second is nothing. Mr. Duke can have his choice, of which fee he wants to pay me." Mr. Duke sent his cheque for $14,000.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

LIBERTY

The liberty of a people consists in being governed by law which they have made themselves, under whatsoever form it be of government.—Cicero.

The history of liberty is a history of limitations of governmental power, not the increase of it.—Woodrow Wilson.

The world has never had a good definition of the word liberty.—Abraham Lincoln.

Truth crushed to earth springs spontaneously upward, and whispers to the breeze man's inalienable birthright: Liberty.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Personal liberty is the paramount essential to human dignity and human happiness.—Bulwer-Lytton.

The only liberty I mean, is a liberty connected with order; that not only exists along with order and virtue, but which cannot exist at all without them.—Edmund Burke.

Town Named After Dog

And Residents Of Dingo, Australia, Do Not Like It

Residents of Dingo, Australia, are tired of living in a town named after a dog. Dingo is the name of a breed of Australian dog and when mail men addressed the town as Dingo, it is to much like being called a name, they say. People of Ceratodus, named after a lung fish, and those of Green Pigeon don't seem to resent their town names so much.

The Lost Squad

"When I was a boy," said the sergeant to a squad of recruits, "I had some wooden soldiers which I lost. My mother said: 'Oh, you'll soon find them.' And believe me, you lopsided mutton-headed gang, that day has come."

What a pity it is that a person can't tap into his experience for as much as it cost him.

When a man is too proud to beg and too honest to steal he hunts up a grocer who is willing to trust him.

The Duke Of Connaught

Has Been A British Field Marshal For 35 Years

If the Duke of Connaught lives to celebrate three more birthdays he will have broken a British army record—that of having been a field marshal for a longer period than the Duke of Cambridge. The former Governor-General of Canada recently celebrated his 81st birthday. He is a wonderful old man, whose only evidence of increasing years is deafness. When he was born in Buckingham Palace, so long ago, he was described by the Duke of Wellington, who later became his godfather, as "a very fine boy." The Iron Duke would not have ventured to predict that his godson would live to have his name in the army list for 72 years. He was gazetted as a lieutenant in the Royal Engineers in June, 1868, transferred in November to the Royal Artillery, and finally to the Rifle Brigade in August, 1869. He has been attached to the brigade ever since. He reached the highest rank in the army, that of field marshal, in June, 1902. He is thus approaching the record of the Duke of Cambridge, who was a field marshal for 42 years.

Steer Clear Of Award

Officers Do Not Want Order Of The Bowler Hat

Somewhere in England officers at headquarters of a 1st Division infantry brigade from western Canada are steering clear of the "Order of the Bowler Hat." As unique an order as any in existence, the O.B.H. is "awarded for outstanding oversights, blunders or such other causes" as the brigadier, a former University of Saskatchewan professor, may designate.

It was instituted by the brigadier early this year after a series of what he called "stupid mistakes." So far there have been only two awards, both to Edmonton lieutenants—the first for "misleading a night convoy" and the second "for failing to deliver a rum issue."

The order is conspicuously placed on the mantel in the officers' mess at headquarters. The bowler hat is there, too, for all to see and remember.

EDMONTON 1941 EXHIBITION

JULY 14 TO JULY 19

Stars of screen, stage and radio, thrilling rides, spectacular and novelty side shows have been engaged for the Edmonton Exhibition Association's summer fair which will be held from July 14 to 19 inclusive.

In addition to the spectacular grandstand attractions, midway rides and shows, there will be six days of horse racing with some of the finest Canadian and American bred horses competing in seven races daily.

There will be marvellous fireworks displays on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Other special attractions are the basketball tournament open to amateur teams from any city, town or village in northern Alberta.

The grandstand show "Music on Wings" is heralded as the greatest musical extravaganza since Ziegfeld, and will feature Bill Britton, the Clown of Swing and his famous band, known as the Musical Maniacs. This is an attraction that will rock the grandstand with laughter. It has been rated the No. 1 comedy band for years and three years ago scored a remarkable hit in London, England.

This year an entirely new All Canadian midway will be shown. It is being organized by J. W. "Patsy" Conklin who for the past several years has had the contract for the midway attractions at the Canadian National Exhibition.

For the Edmonton show he has assembled dazzling new rides based on the public interest in aeronautics which will give patrons the same sensation as a pilot gets when he roars his Spitfire into battle. In meeting the request of the Federal government for the Edmonton Exhibition grounds for use as a R.C.A.F. training centre, it has been necessary to cancel the livestock show, and in doing this the Association's directors feel they will have the full support and entire approval of all livestock people in Canada.

Although the livestock classes have been cancelled the agricultural, horticultural and other farming features will continue to function for the purpose of giving all possible assistance to livestock and agricultural interests. Although there will be no further summer fairs until the war has been won, the Exhibition Association's policy will be to keep in close touch with all agricultural activities and to be prepared to carry on as usual when victory is won.

Special reduced rates on all rail-ways and bus lines of single fare for the round trip will be available from July 12 to 19 inclusive except where no train is available on July 12 when tickets may be sold for July 11. Return limit on these tickets is July 22nd.

Throughout northern Alberta, in every city, town and hamlet, advance tickets for the great show will be available at the usual places they have been sold in previous years and at the usual special reduced price.

Notwithstanding that this will be the last summer fair until victory is ours, the directors of the association are planning to make the 1941 summer fair the greatest in history and no effort or expense is being spared consistent with war economies, to make this year's show one that will be remembered through the dark days of the war.

The last show till victory is won will be as great in the production of enjoyment now as will be the news of victory when the foes of today are conquered.
